

STORIES OF REDSTONE

Jumping in with both feet

Confirmands experience full-immersion baptism

In May, Redstone's Springhill Furnace Church celebrated two full immersion baptisms at Cheat Lake Park in Morgantown, WV. The baptisms were part of the church's confirmation of four youth including Sam and James who had never been baptized.

Sixteen year old Sam wanted to be baptized the way Jesus was—outside in a lake or river. It would feel like “a clean fresh start.”

At first, Rev. Molly Hall was hesitant, thinking about the lake's water temperature and the challenge of getting church members down to the lakeshore. She changed her mind when the other teen members of the confirmation class, Nicholas and Nathan, volunteered to help.

“I was blown away that Nicholas and Nathan were willing to do that for Sam and James,” said Pastor Hall. In the end, over half of the church and many of the kids' friends and family members came out to witness the baptism, which was followed by a picnic and swim. Hall added, “Seeing these four young people committing themselves to God in the water with their families and church members cheering them on was a blessing for everyone.”

Communicate the Word. Carry the work. Change the world...

TOGETHER

STORIES OF REDSTONE

Jumping in with both feet

Confirmands experience full-immersion baptism

In May, Redstone's Springhill Furnace Church celebrated two full immersion baptisms at Cheat Lake Park in Morgantown, WV. The baptisms were part of the church's confirmation of four youth including Sam and James who had never been baptized.

Sixteen year old Sam wanted to be baptized the way Jesus was—outside in a lake or river. It would feel like “a clean fresh start.”

At first, Rev. Molly Hall was hesitant, thinking about the lake's water temperature and the challenge of getting church members down to the lakeshore. She changed her mind when the other teen members of the confirmation class, Nicholas and Nathan, volunteered to help.

“I was blown away that Nicholas and Nathan were willing to do that for Sam and James,” said Pastor Hall. In the end, over half of the church and many of the kids' friends and family members came out to witness the baptism, which was followed by a picnic and swim. Hall added, “Seeing these four young people committing themselves to God in the water with their families and church members cheering them on was a blessing for everyone.”

Communicate the Word. Carry the work. Change the world...

TOGETHER