

Stories of Redstone

Christ at work in our midst

Creating Community With a Farmers' Market

Coffee, music and fellowship may not be the hallmarks of a farmers' market, but they are what sets the Westmont Presbyterian Church's Community Farmers' Market apart from others. The market reflects Westmont's desire to reach out beyond its walls and share the love of Christ with their community.

The market supports local vendors--farmers, bakers, growers of fresh flowers and plants, etc. who grow or produce in the area. Several of the vendors have been members of the market from its inception seven years ago, and have developed a strong relationship not only with the church, but also with those in the community that support the market.

There is a fellowship table where shoppers can have a complimentary cup of coffee, tea or hot chocolate and music is provided by one of the church's members playing the keyboard. There is free face painting for the children, and an ice cream social once a month. The market is open, rain or shine, each Saturday from 9:00AM to noon from late May to the second week in October.

It is through Christ that the Community Farmers' Market has been a success and continues to provide a valuable service to the vendors and shoppers.

Communicate the Word...Carry on the Work...Change the World
Together!

Stories of Redstone

Christ at work in our midst

Creating Community With a Farmers' Market

Coffee, music and fellowship may not be the hallmarks of a farmers' market, but they are what sets the Westmont Presbyterian Church's Community Farmers' Market apart from others. The market reflects Westmont's desire to reach out beyond its walls and share the love of Christ with their community.

The market supports local vendors--farmers, bakers, growers of fresh flowers and plants, etc. who grow or produce in the area. Several of the vendors have been members of the market from its inception seven years ago, and have developed a strong relationship not only with the church, but also with those in the community that support the market.

There is a fellowship table where shoppers can have a complimentary cup of coffee, tea or hot chocolate and music is provided by one of the church's members playing the keyboard. There is free face painting for the children, and an ice cream social once a month. The market is open, rain or shine, each Saturday from 9:00AM to noon from late May to the second week in October.

It is through Christ that the Community Farmers' Market has been a success and continues to provide a valuable service to the vendors and shoppers.

Communicate the Word...Carry on the Work...Change the World
Together!