

Stories of Redstone

Christ at work in our midst

Serving the Community and the Church

What does it mean to lead the Presbyterian Church FOR Delmont rather than be the pastor OF Delmont Presbyterian Church?

For The Rev. Caroline Vickery, it's a small change in words but a big change in attitude. Vickery is exploring the concept of parish ministry, thinking of herself as the pastor for everyone in Delmont who does not have a pastor.

As the community pastor, Vickery holds office hours at the local McDonald's one morning a week. She and other members of the church offer prayer and presence to patrons. She admits this new form of ministry is not easy. But says Jesus calls us to do things we are uncomfortable with. It's also widened the idea of what ministry can be for the church she serves.

"I have to explain why I'm at McDonald's knitting and having coffee," she says. "But I pray here. Even when people don't make requests in person, I get prayer requests by Facebook and text. It's a new way of thinking about ministry."

Communicate the Word...Carry on the Work...Change the World
Together!

Stories of Redstone

Christ at work in our midst

Serving the Community and the Church

What does it mean to lead the Presbyterian Church FOR Delmont rather than be the pastor OF Delmont Presbyterian Church?

For The Rev. Caroline Vickery, it's a small change in words but a big change in attitude. Vickery is exploring the concept of parish ministry, thinking of herself as the pastor for everyone in Delmont who does not have a pastor.

As the community pastor, Vickery holds office hours at the local McDonald's one morning a week. She and other members of the church offer prayer and presence to patrons. She admits this new form of ministry is not easy. But says Jesus calls us to do things we are uncomfortable with. It's also widened the idea of what ministry can be for the church she serves.

"I have to explain why I'm at McDonald's knitting and having coffee," she says. "But I pray here. Even when people don't make requests in person, I get prayer requests by Facebook and text. It's a new way of thinking about ministry."

Communicate the Word...Carry on the Work...Change the World
Together!